

Final

After sorting the cards, I had some cards from that I was going to remove from the site as content. I chose to wait until after someone else sorted them to see if they needed to be removed. Overall I thought that the groups were straightforward and nobody should have trouble sorting them.

When my roommate sorted the cards, she didn't seem to have much trouble. It took a few minutes to catch on to the groups that I created. It only took her about 6 minutes to sort them out. There were 4 cards that she didn't know how to group. Those cards were actually a group within themselves. Watching her sort them gave me an idea of how I want to go about removing some content from the site.